Sponsoring Pitch Black is a strategic opportunity for your organization to champion diversity, inclusion, and economic development. By supporting this transformative platform, you actively foster a more inclusive business environment, connecting BIPOC and immigrant/refugee entrepreneurs with vital resources and opportunities. Your support plays a crucial role in bringing the MAC Xcelerator program to life—a recognized nine-week fast-track initiative crafted to empower minority entrepreneurs through business literacy training and mentorship.

Your sponsorship not only showcases corporate social responsibility but also provides access to a pool of innovative talent, networking with influential leaders, and visibility across diverse channels. Aligning with Pitch Black aligns your brand with the Midlands African Chamber's mission, demonstrating a commitment to empowering underrepresented communities, promoting entrepreneurship, and contributing to the overall economic vitality of the Midwest.

Xavier Jackson, founder of Local Art Plug, LLC, testifies to the transformative power of Pitch Black. Through MAC's program, he solidified his business foundation, gained legal insights, and leveraged digital marketing strategies from Meta. Xavier's success story highlights the impactful role Pitch Black plays in fostering growth, exposure, and community building for entrepreneurs.

Rising CEOs

Foster entrepreneurial spirit, technology, and leadership skills among at-risk youth. Meet Bristol Ebeigbe, a Rising CEO and CEO of KashOut, and Truth Fowler, who transformed their business literacy journeys through the Rising CEOs program.

Bristol Ebeigbe

Ebeigbe is a 15-year-old 9th-grade student at Millard North High School and CEO of KashOut, a platform designed to provide education and advertising opportunities for teenage entrepreneurs. Born to a Nigerian father and African American mother, Ebeigbe won the 2023 Rising CEOs pitch competition and obtained coaching and seed funding for his business idea. Ebeigbe is thankful for the business skills he acquired and believes the Rising CEOs program has the potential to transform the lives of countless young minority entrepreneurs.

Truth Fowler

At 14, Truth Fowler founded Truth Heals while living in foster care. Truth Heals offers affordable sea moss-based remedies for those with limited finances. She was inspired by her uncle's recovery from terminal sepsis after taking sea moss jelly. The Rising CEOs program helped develop a business plan, leverage social media, and establish a robust personal brand, empowering Truth to advance her business and inspire young girls in her community.
